MEN BANQUET

BROTHERHOOD BIBLE CLASS OF CHRISTIAN CHURCH OPEN CAMPAIGN

Monday evening the Brotherhood Bible Class of the Christian church gave a banquet to boost the membership, the goal being set at 100 before the Billy Sunday campaign opens. There were 46 present. The menu consisted of baked beans, bread and butter, chips, olives, tea, and raspberries and cream. The banquet was prepared entirely by a committee of men from the class, even to the cooking of the beans, and it was a most appetizing spread. Elder Cole, pastor of the church, acted as toastmaster and called for short addresses from F. C. Herron, who represents the class on the Billy Sunday committee, and on Fred Thompson, who had been an active worker in the same cause up to the very eve of his departure for the East. Then Dr. J. A. Eby of Los Angeles, General Secretary of the Billy Sunday organization, was introduced and made a most inspiring address. He referred to the fact that there were more than 20,000 people on committees of various kinds for the great campaign, that 210 churches were already enlisted and that at least 40 more were expected to align themselves with the movement. San Bernardino, Colton and even far-off San Diego want to be counted in on the campaign. He was most optimistic as to the wonderful results to come from the meetings and was especially interested in the work of the Men's Bible Classes. At 9:30 the meeting was over and several men went over to C. E. Hutton's, where Mrs. Hutton was holding a farewell reception for Fred Thompson and family, who were to start on their eastern trip the next day.

THE WAR IS ON!

The public are hereby reminded of the big advance rally to-night at 7:45 in the interests of the Billy Sunday campaign. Two monster meetings are planned, one in the First M. E. church for the men, to be addressed by Dr. Dowey, and the other at the First Baptist church, addressed by Dr. Eby. The best musical talent of the city has been engaged to assist in the meetings and all the regular prayer meetings will combine in the two meetings. A rich treat is in store for all who attend.

Here is what America's richest and most consecrated young business man has to say about the recent Billy Sunday meetings in New York City, in a special telegram to Dr. Eby:

"Mr. Sunday's campaign in New York is just ending. It has been successful even beyond the hopes of the committee in charge. Many who criticized at the outset are now his loyal supporters. No one who has attended his meetings for a moment questions his sincerity, singleness of purpose and splendid power. Those who have critized his methods have been obliged to recognize their effectiveness. His coming to New York has been a great blessing to the city as it is sure to be to any city which backs his efforts earnestly and loyally.

WORK FOR SCHOOL GIRLS

The closing of the schools for the summer releases thousands of girls capable of contributing a great deal to the Red Cross. In the state of New York arrangements have already been made to enlist school girls in Red Cross work, particularly those who have had domestic science instruction. The plan is a splendid one and deserves adoption generally. Under this arrangement school girls in groups of ten give ten cents each to pay for a membership for one of their number. Meeting in groups as convenient, these girls do such sewing and other work as is practicable. Of course girls who do not care to contribute even the nominal sum of ten cents are equally welcome to do as much work as they can. Or twenty school girls, or a class, may each give five cents to pay for one membership for the group.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION

The hospitality committee through their chairman, Mrs. R. W. Meeker, wish to thank the Ladies' Aid of the First Methodist church for the lovely luncheon which they so beautifully served to the members of the Tuesday Afternoon club and their guests. It was surely a labor of love, performed in a manner above criticism.

CLUB LUNCHEON

The Glendale Tuesday Afternoon club closed a highly successful year under the presidency of Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, with a beautiful luncheon on Tuesday in the spacious banquet room of the new Methodist church. The hall had been tastily decorated by the club decoration committee with an abundance of ivy and flags, and the tables were adorned with coreopsis and daisies. Covers were laid for 213 and a delicious four-course luncheon was faultlessly served by the Ladies' Aid of the First Methodist Church.

Mrs. Herbert Cable, the newly elected president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, was the guest of honor. Seated at the speakers' table were: Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, president, Mrs. Herbert Cable, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, newly elected president of the District Federation, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, president of the State Congress of Mothers, new officers and new and retiring board members of the club as follows: Mrs. William Ramsay, president; Mrs. E. D. Yard, vice-president; Mrs. C. E. Harlan, second vice-president; Mrs. Lawrence Ellis, recording secretary; Mrs. H. P. Goodwin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Stephen Packer, treasurer; directors: Mrs. E. H. Willisford, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. David Black, Mrs. H. Lee Clotworthy, Mrs. William Nash. Mr. H. E. Bartlett, who has rendered untiring service to the club this year, was seated at the speakers' table, as were also the personnel of the afternoon's program as follows: Miss Charlotte Powers of Los Angeles, reader; Mrs. Frank Arnold, soloist; Mr. Julius Kranz, violinist; Miss Gertrude Champlain, pianist.

At the close of the luncheon, Mrs. Bartlett introduced Mrs. Herbert Cable, who spoke earnestly and seriously as she pointed the way for service and sacrifice on the part of organized club women. Mrs. Frank Arnold sang in her own beautiful way, Invocation to Eros by Kursteiner, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Champlain, and Serenade by Schubert, with violin obligato by Julius Kranz and with Miss Champlain at the piano.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell brought greetings from the State Congress of Mothers and sounded a serious note of woman's place in the present world's crisis. Julius Kranz followed with two beautiful violin solos, Caprice by Paganini and Visions, Mr. Kranz' own composition. He was ably accompanied by Miss Champlain at the piano.

At this point in the program the president, Mrs. Bartlett, gave a splendid account of her stewardship for the year, and interesting and timely reports were given by the other officers of the club, as follows: Mrs. E. D. Yard, Mrs. C. E. Harlan, Mrs. H. P. Goodwin, Mrs. Lawrence Ellis, Mrs. Stephen Packer. Mrs. Martha Morris presented Mrs. Bartlett with a beautiful wrist watch as a token of love and appreciation from her officers and the advisory council of the club. Following the reports, Miss Charlotte Powers of Los Angeles, a reader of charm and ability, relieved the serious trend of the afternoon's program with a group of four pleasing numbers: a. When De Folks Am Gone, by James Whitcomb Riley; b. Character Sketch, The Battle of Marathon; c. An Experience in a Spanish Restaurant; d. The Wind and the Moon, by McDowell.

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones was then introduced by the president, Mrs. Bartlett, and with words of appreciation of the local club, Mrs. Jones spoke on Looking Forward. Officers for the ensuing year were then presented to the club, the new president, Mrs. William Ramsay, responding to her enthusiastic welcome with a few well chosen words. A patriotic reading, "Your Flag and My Flag" by Nesbit, was well read by Miss Doris Packer, and the singing of the Star-Spangled Banner by the large audience closed one of the loveliest annual affairs the club has ever enjoyed.

Mrs. Bartlett's Address

Again we have reached the close of our club year and the end of another club presidency.

Many are the pleasant meetings we have enjoyed together and I thank you for the honor and privilege of being permitted to serve you for the past two years. I feel that for me, personally, it has been time well spent. It has been a pleasure also and though I cease to be your

LENS IS THREATENED

GERMAN DEFENDERS OF IMPORTANT CITY HAVE RETIRED TO SUBURBS AND ESTABLISHED FORTS.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, June 27.—German defenders of Lens are retiring into Avion, a suburb of the ruins of Lens today. Here behind slag heaps and railroad embankments they established fortresses and installed guns. West of Lens, prisoners say Germany is hard pressed. The British are in control of nominally all the high ground around Lens. Haig has Hindenburg guessing. German prisoners confess that all plans have been stopped by the enemy aviators almost before starting to carry them out. Every day threatens Lens more strongly.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

BERLIN, June 27.—Agitation for the immediate liberalization of the government is growing daily. Former conservative leaders are now demanding swift reforms. Prof. Otto Huntze, a noted conservative and a supporter of the Kaiser, made the following statement: "We Prussians cannot stand alone in the midst of Germany, of Europe, of the whole world and resist liberalization. We are threatened with the danger of isolation from the people of the world."

DISCUSS ANNEXATION

TROPICO-GLENDALE CONSOLIDATION CLUB FORMED AT IMPORTANT MEETING

The Kimberly home on San Fernando boulevard was the scene of a very merry gathering Monday evening.

Among the thirty-seven guests were some of the largest business representatives and taxpayers of Tropico. A very enjoyable and profitable evening was spent and a club was formed which will be known as "The Tropico-Glendale Consolidation Association."

Among those speaking were Mr. Chas. Burnham and Mr. Herman Paine of the factories, who stated they would move their $80,000 plants away from Tropico if it goes into Los Angeles because of Los Angeles ordinances, thus saving the freight both ways on material.

Mr. Norton Wells also showed up many hardships in the Los Angeles ordirances that would be worked on business men if they made improvements out here.

Dr. A. Duncan spoke to the point on many interests of our people and had his subject well in hand.

ELLA W. RICHARDSON.

The following letter has been sent to every voter:

Tropico, Cal., June 26, 1917.

To the Voters:

You undoubtedly have read the dodger distributed by the Tropico-Los Angeles Consolidation Club, John B. Treadwell, president; Edgar S. Ayers, secretary, and Walter C. Seal, treasurer. In connection with the same, we beg to make the following statements:

Ever since the City of Los Angeles began to annex outside territory, the laws governing annexations and consolidations have been amended repeatedly. One of the amendments makes it possible for the City of Los Angeles to annex or consolidate outside territory by a majority vote; requiring the territory added to the City of Los Angeles to assume its proportional share of the bonded indebtedness of Los Angeles (all other Bond elections require a two-thirds majority).

Another amendment as printed on the dodger referred to makes it possible for 5 electors of the territory desiring consolidation, with the cooperation of the City Council of Los Angeles, to hold up all action in a smaller municipality for 30 days, except on the consolidation with Los Angeles.

Now John B. Treadwell, Edgar S. Ayers and Walter C. Seal caused notice signed by 5 Tropico citizens to be served on the City Council of Los Angeles on June 11th, 1917, for such consolidation with Los Angeles, while a petition for the consolidation of Tropico was completed and ready to be presented to the Board of Trustees of Tropico, asking for the calling of an election for such consolidation, thereby delaying such presentation and are now soliciting signers for the Los Angeles-Tropico consolidation.

The Tropico-Glendale petition is not insufficient. It has more than enough names to have an election called, but cannot be made use of at this time, because of the advantage taken of the amendment law.

At the expiration of 30 days the Tropico-Glendale consolidation petition which you have signed will be presented to the Board of Trustees of the City of Tropico, and an election called.

Do not be misled—investigate these statements.

MRS. J. A. GREGORY, Chairman.

RICHARD S. TODD, Secy-Treas.

GILMORE-MOTT

At 5:30 yesterday occurred the marriage of Miss Florence E. Gilmore, 2829 Pico Heights, Los Angeles, to Mr. Wm. Basil Mott, 1415 Burchett street, Glendale, the Rev. Schaflee officiating, after which the bride's sister, Mrs. Wm. Lockyer, served a bountiful dinner, only relatives and intimate friends being present.

The groom has been employed as cashier for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company for the past four years. The bride is a beautiful and popular young lady. They were the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Mott left immediately on an extended trip through northern California, Oregon and Washington.

CIVIC CONSERVATION

VOLUNTEERS WILL SUPERVISE PACIFIC AVE. PLAYGROUNDS DURING SUMMER

A meeting of those interested in the Pacific avenue playgrounds was held Tuesday afternoon at the Pacific avenue school. The object of the meeting was the consideration of plans for the supervision of the children's activities during the months of July and August at this playground.

It was decided to open July 4 with a short program and games suitable to the day. The grounds will be open after July 4 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons of each week from 2 until 6 during the months of July and August. There will be no paid supervisor but volunteer helpers. There will be two persons in charge each afternoon, one a director, the other acting as assistant.

This playground is open to all children who care to attend so long as rules and regulations governing the same are not broken.

The following have volunteered their services in supervising one afternoon a week: Mrs. George H. Herald, Mrs. Zella Robinson, Mr. M. B. Hartmann, Mrs. Minnette Sherman, while the following will supervise one afternoon every other week: Mrs. A. S. Chase, Mrs. Stephen Packer, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. W. D. Clark, Mrs. Roscoe Puffer, with Mrs. Ella Richardson and Mr. W. D. Clark as substitutes. A much longer list of substitutes is desired, either in the capacity of director or assistant. You may not feel the need of the playgrounds for your children, but others do feel this need who cannot help supervise. It is up to the one who can do this regardless of how it may benefit you and yours. This is civic conservation of the highest order.

The following executive committee was elected to serve throughout the summer and were invested with full authority for the management of the work: Mrs. Minnette Sherman, Mrs. George H. Herald, and Mr. M. B. Hartmann, with Mr. Richardson D. White, ex-officio member and final authority.

JULIUS KRANZ WINS HONORS

Quite a number of Glendale people attended the concert Tuesday evening at the Little Theatre, Los Angeles, given by the winners and those receiving honorable mention in the Second Annual May contest of the Matinee Musical club of Los Angeles. Mr. Julius Kranz, one of our noted artists, was the winner of one of the prizes, and his composition, "Life' Hour," a four-part chorus, given by the Lyric club, with the violin obligato by Mr. Kranz, with Miss Gertrude Champlain at the piano, was one of the gems of the evening and greatly added to the already well-earned laurels of the talented composer. Following the program of seven numbers, the prizes were distributed.

Those attending this enjoyable concert were Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, Miss Nellie Williams, Mrs. Harry Peterson, Mrs. Alex Mitchell, the Misses Lorraine and Barbara Mitchell, Mr. Shives Mitchell, Miss Eulalia Richardson, Mrs. Helen Campbell, Miss Annie McIntyre, Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, Mrs. A. W. Dow, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Kranz, Milton Kranz, Miss Millicent Virden, Miss Leota Allen, Mrs. D. L. Jordan, Mrs. S. G. Champlain, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Whitten, Mrs. W. H. Bullis and party.

SUPERVISORS INSPECT BRIDGES

Supervisors J. J. Hamilton, Jonathan Dodge, McCleland and Norton, accompanied by County Engineer Reagan and County Road Commissioner Joiner, were in Glendale and Casa Verdugo Wednesday forenoon, inspecting the conditions of the wash between Louise street and Central avenue, with a view of considering if it is advisable for the county to join with the Pacific Electric railway to build a new bridge across the wash at Brand boulevard, and also to straighten the wash channel. There were a number of the citizens of Glendale and Casa Verdugo present to confer with the board of supervisors on this question. The present condition of the bridges at this point is such that they serve as dams rather than a clear channel for the passage of the water. It is quite certain that the supervisors will take some action in the way of getting the necessary amount with the budget that is now being made up.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1917

WHAT THE AMERICAN WOMAN CAN DO FOR THE RED CROSS

1.—The Professional Woman.

Only the very best professional trained graduate nurses, with known executive ability, stand any chance of reaching the base war hospitals with the first American armies.

The Red Cross now has an enrollment sufficient to care for the war-nursing requirements of an army of 1,000,000.

2.—The Non-Professional Woman—Volunteer.

Nurses' aids are now being selected. Their duties are very hard—largely preparation of food in diet kitchens, food for the hospital staff, general hospital work.

The aids are being selected from those possessing certificates in the Red Cross courses. Many large cities already have such classes.

Classes can be started anywhere by from ten to twenty women. Write to the Red Cross Bureau of Nursing Service, Washington, D. C.

Romance in Red Cross war nursing is not altogether dead. But disappointment faces the beautiful American woman who fancies herself holding some dying soldier's head in her lap, taking his last words for his mother or perhaps sending him to a soldier's reward with a last kiss. Work—hard toil—generally out of sound of the cannon is the part of the trained nurse at the base hospital. For her assistant or aid—and under this classification falls the greater number of volunteer American women—there is even more bemeaning toil. Hospital housework and even the most personal tasks for wounded soldiers are the part of the nurse's aid. Gently reared high school girls who at present do no dishwashing, scrubbing and cooking, desiring to serve their country, perhaps think of Red Cross work. If they volunteer they soon are disillusioned. They turn sick at the stomach when told their duties may include carrying out slop jars, amputated fingers, feet, arms and legs or scrubbing away traces of hemorrhage.

If patriotism overcomes even these shocks and the girl still wishes to serve Uncle Sam, she still faces a long, hard course of training. Even then she may not be among those chosen to nurse American soldiers. The standard set up by the American Red Cross is very severe. Special training and fitness for war nursing are required in addition to the highest personal attributes and strongest physiques.

The Red Cross has been preparing for this war for years. It now has an enrollment of 10,000 trained, graduated professional nurses, sufficient to care for the war-nursing requirements of an army of 1,000,000.

Professional nurses may still apply to the Red Cross for enrollment but they are now not likely to be needed for another year at least. They must be between the ages of 25 and 40. Of nurses' aids there may be some need sooner, but untrained volunteer women who really hope to serve in American hospitals in France should immediately begin preparing themselves to pass the Red Cross examination. Nurses' aids are now being selected by the Red Cross, but the young "hair-brained" high school girl-volunteer, however patriotic and sincere, stands small chance of being chosen, principally because of her youth.

Women who aspire to reach the front as nurses' aids must pass examinations in the Red Cross courses in First Aid, Hygiene and Home Care of the Sick, Home Dietetics, and Preparation of Surgical Dressings.

The American woman who wishes to help in this war can lend a hand in other work than war nursing. She should immediately get in touch with the local Red Cross chapter in her home town.

Here are some of the things she may be called upon to do before the war is over: Serve in civil hospitals from which nurses have gone to war. Sewing, Mending, Linen Room Work, Preparation of Surgical Supplies, Masseuse, Packing, Housekeeping, Photographer, Shipping, Cook, Waitress, Typist, Telephone Operator.

WHAT THE RED CROSS IS

By William Howard Taft

The American National Red Cross is the only volunteer society in the United States which our Government has authorized to render aid to our land and naval forces in time of war.

To furnish, on call by the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy, volunteer aid in time of war to the sick and wounded, and to add to the comfort of all soldiers and sailors.

To act in matters of voluntary war relief and in accord with the military and naval authorities as a medium of communication between the American people and their fighting forces.

The Red Cross is international in the sense that its duties and functions are recognized by all civilized nations, and it had its origin in an international conference in Geneva.

The President of the United States is President of the American National Red Cross. Representatives of the State Department, Treasury, the Army and the Navy are included in the membership of the Central Committee which directs the operations and management of the Red Cross. In time of war, when the Red Cross is called into service by the Government of the United States, its forces in the field become a part of the forces of the United Saes, and are subject to the control of the military and naval authorities.

Membership in the Red Cross does not of itself impose any obligations. Joining the Red Cross should not be confused with volunteer enrollment for active field service with the Red Cross. For such service there are special duties and requirements.

There are three zones in which the Medical Service operates in time of war. The first is that of the front, which extends from the battle line to the evacuation hospitals; the second, that of the line of communication and base, and the third, that of the interior or home country.

The service of the front is the exclusive duty of the Army Medical Service. In this zone sick and wounded are given emergency treatment, and transported as soon as possible to the base hospitals farther in the rear, for more adequate care and treatment. The work of the Red Cross is confined to the zones of transfer and the interior or home country.

It is in the home country that most of us will find our opportunity to serve the Red Cross. It is from the interior that the vast quantities of medical supplies and comforts certain to be needed must come. To prepare them and move them forward energetic groups of workers are necessary in all parts of the country. The number of those who can thus serve the Red Cross, and through it our soldiers and sailors, is limited only by patriotism and willingness to serve. Nothing less than the organized, united effort on the part of those of us who remain at home will suffice to meet the needs of the situtaion.

LEARN HISTORY OF FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS

If citizens of the United States must engage in commerce and war with foreign nations, it is necessary for the masses of citizenship to be familiar with forms of government and the manners and customs of people of foreign nations.

The average American citizen has been uninformed as to the powers of the Kaiser and the manner of conducting the German government. On page three of this issue of the Evening News space is given to an article that will throw some light upon the plan of conducting the German government. Read the article and file it away for future reference.

Prior to the breaking out of the present war in 1914 it was very customary for our people to look to Germany as being the fountain head of all that was classical, and the person who could not afford to complete his higher education at German schools was not considered as having his education finished. Germany, prior to the war, received a recognition from American educational institutions which has tended to give that nation a prestige that must now be overthrown at the expense of the loss of lives and the sacrifice of millions of dollars on the part of the United States.

FAVORABLE MENTION OF GLENDALE AND CASA VERDUGO

The County Board of Supervisors visited Glendale and Casa Verdugo Wednesday of this week and as these gentlemen drove over various streets of the city they remarked concerning the very neat appearance of the lawns and residences. Special mention was made of the fact that so many vacant lots are being cultivated.

If a self-made man says he is ashamed of his job he is a pretty fair specimen of what David said all men were.

KAISER SUPREME

THE GERMAN PEOPLE HAVE NO VOICE IN THE GOVERNMENT OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE

The German empire is composed of twenty-two states and three free cities. Each of these twenty-five "communities" has as a "sovereign" called a king, a grand duke, a duke or a prince. These twenty-five communities constitute the "union," of which the king of Prussia is the "president" with the name of "German emperor," and he derives his power from these kings, grand dukes, dukes and princes—the "monarchs" of the same kingdoms, dukedoms, etc., and not from the people of those principalities.

These twenty-five independent German sovereigns in order to have some machinery for concerted action, organized a legislative chamber called the bundesrath, which consists of delegates not elected but "appointed" by these German kings, grand dukes, etc. Of these the king of Prussia selects and appoints seventeen, the king of Bavaria six, the king of Saxony four, etc. Making a total of fifty-eight delegates and these delegates are instructed by the king or duke who appoints them precisely as to how they are to vote.

The "unit rule" prevails, so that seventeen votes from Prussia are cast for or against any measure, even though only one delegate be present, and the same is true with the other "sets of delegates." The provision is that fourteen votes can defeat any proposed amendment, and since the king of Prussia controls twenty votes, he can block any attempt to change the existing situation. The paradox is, therefore, that the bundesrath controls the German empire, and the king of Prussia controls the bundesrath.

The bundesrath originates all taxing bills. The chancellor, the direct appointee of the kaiser, and responsible only to him, prepares the budget and submits it to the bundesrath for approval; and that body passes it on to the reichstag.

The reichstag was organized in 1869 with a representation of one for each 100,000 people, and the constitution provided that that representation should remain until further legislation; and such further legislation has never been enacted. At that time Berlin had 600,000 people and six representatives. And now has a population of 2,000,000 people and still has only six representatives.

Prussia is the largest German state and has more population than all the rest combined; and Prussia, by the constitution, has the chairmanship of all committees, except that on foreign affairs.

The kaiser, as king of Prussia, possesses the initiative in legislation, since he instructs his chancellor to prepare laws for introduction to the bundesrath.

Prussia, which through the king, really controls the empire, has a legislature of landtag consisting of two chambers, the herrenhaus or "peers," and abgeordnetenhaus, or representatives. All the peers are appointed by the king, and he has power to fix the number of its members; except certain life members, some of whom are nominated by the large land owners, universities, churches, etc.

The lower house is supposed to be a popular assembly, but is really not so, because all votes for representatives are divided into three classes, based on the amount of taxes they pay. Those citizens whose combined taxes are one-third of the whole choose one-third; then those who pay the next two-thirds choose one-third of the representatives, and the balance one-third representing the great mass of the population, choose the remaining one-third of the representatives. To illustrate: In one district in Berlin, three citizens pay one-third of the taxes and therefore elect one-third of the members. Eight citizens pay another one-third and elect one-third of representatives and 294 citizens pay the remaining one-third and elect one-third of the representatives; thus three men chose as many representatives as 294 did.

In 1903 social democrats cast 314,149 votes, but elected no representatives; while the conservatives cast 324,157 votes and elected 143 representatives. In the last election the social democrats cast twenty-four per cent. of the votes, but elected only seven members out of 420.

Practically this same system prevails in all the German states with the exception of Mecklenburg.

It is thus seen that the citizens of Germany have practically no power whatever or say in the government. The king appoints the chancellor, who is responsible alone to him. He introduces all important bills and they are passed on to the reichstag, which has the power to approve or disapprove.

In the Prussian empire the head of the ministry is usually the same person who is chancellor of the empire. The kaiser appoints the minister and all his associates and can remove them all at will, and he dominates both the house of peers and the house of representatives as well, since he appoints the peers, which controls all legislation, and the majority of the representatives represent the wealthy class.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that many Germans with democratic desires, left Germany and came to the United States?

And is it startling and amazing that any of them now can respect the kaiser, much less approve of his deeds in this war?

DOES YOUR CAR WORK ALL DAY?

How many hours a day is your automobile actually in use? Isn't it standing idle in front of your house, or at your husbands' place of business, most of each work day? That's the case with most pleasure cars. If it is so with yours you have an exceptional opportunity to help the Red Cross Chapter in your town by lending the use of your car by the day or hour. If you can give your own services as driver, all the better; but if not, someone else who can drive it can always be found. An active Red Cross Chapter always is in need of the services of one or more cars, to carry material and completed work to and from workers, to transport packages to the point of shipment, and for dozens of other uses. A dozen persons, by arranging a schedule of days and hours, can supply a Chapter with complete automobile service without any one of them being compelled to make any great sacrifice.—Exchange.

HELP FOR THOSE AT HOME

Nearly every soldier and sailor leaves behind him near and dear ones. Even though our Government is making every effort to take for field service only those whose going will leave no one in want, there are certain to be cases of need of one sort or another. To care for dependents left at home is one of the functions of the American Red Cross. Its practice is to render such service in co-operation with other agencies for extending sympathy and relief, such as fraternal societies and other groups. If you are a member of any organization prepared by previous experience or otherwise for this form of social service, you may well bring up in your meeting the matter of extending co-operation to the Red Cross Chapter in this part of its work. This does not necessarily mean dispensing of charity; as a matter of fact, friendly interest, advice, and assistance in getting employment are quite likely to be needed just as much as money.

QUESTION OF LAND

Angelina and Carolin were chatting about a young man whom they both knew. "I can't make anything of young Dalston—he's so stupid," said Angelina. "I don't think so," said Caroline. "He has lots in him when you know him." "Has he?" remarked Angelina. "Well, then I'm sure it's a vacant lot!"

presiding officer, I trust I shall not cease to be an active member of our club.

I sincerely thank the members of the Board who have worked so willingly and faithfully with me to carry out the plans for the activities of the club. The hearty co-operation of, and support from, all sections and committees has been most gratifying. The many kind and appreciative words which have been spoken have served to make easier the work, which is not always light, in a club the size ours has grown to be.

As a club we have taken a good stride forward in many ways. I think our fine programs have been appreciated by all and the attendance has been the largest in the history of our club, many meetings taxing the seating capacity of our hall.

We are recognized in the district as a wideawake, progressive club, standing for the best things, and helping, whenever possible, all good enterprises.

I have attended all the regular meetings of the club, all the Board meetings, also all the extra meetings which it has been necessary to hold, both of the Board and Advisory Council. Most of the conference meetings of the District Board have also been attended and the two President's Councils.

I have received 317 pieces of mail and have written over 80 letters and postals.

I have spent hours at the telephone, arranging for meetings, for represenattives for reciprocity days, asking and answering questions and discussing necessary business.

We have received 37 invitations to reciprocity days. I have attended 20, usually with a club member, and have sent representatives to all but a very few of the others. These days are very pleasant and helpful in many ways and it is desirable that our club be represented. I attended the District convention at Santa Monica, as did many of you, where our club was greatly honored by having one of its members (Mrs. Mattison B. Jones) chosen for president of Los Angeles District.

The state convention at Pasadena was also within the reach of all and greatly enjoyed.

Quite a number of our other members are holding prominent positions in club and organization work.

Mrs. A. L. Weaver has been appointed corresponding secretary for Los Angeles District C. F. W. C.

Mrs. Arthur Brown, president Glendale P.-T. A.

Mrs. P. S. McNutt, parliamentarian for same.

Your president has also attended the following meetings as head of this club: The Mothers' Congress, held in this city, the organization of the local Red Cross work, President's Day luncheon at the Ebell club of Los Angeles, Home Products luncheon, given by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Alexandria, and a picnic of Federation Secretaries and Presidents held recently in Laurel Canyon, all very delightful affairs.

We have added 81 members to our numbers this year and while the times and conditions of our country have been against our making a great deal of money, nevertheless a very good showing is to our credit.

We have, as our treasurer has told you, $1090.45 on interest in the bank. Your president and her husband, with assistance from a very few, have swelled the club house fund a little by collecting and selling papers and magazines.

Our very successful bazaar, our evening of entertainment for our husbands and guests, the Colonial tea and others not so formal, and the Christmas party for the children, have brought us together in a social way which has been much appreciated.

In January Mrs. Daniel Campbell, who has served the club so efficiently in various capacities, found it necessary to resign her position as first vice-president and chairman of the ways and means committee. Mrs. E. D. Yard was chosen by the Board to fill the vacancy and has since carried on the work.

Our sections have all done splendid work, but three deserve special mention, as they have had charge of three of our most enjoyable afternoons: they are the Music, Parliamentary Usage and the Art and Travel sections.

Under the auspices of the Music section, two altruistic programs have been given, one at the Hollenbeck Home, the other at the Children's Hospital, both being much enjoyed and calling forth praise from our District chairman of music.

The proceeds from the Colonial Tea were given to the Music House Settlement Association, entitling us to a membership there, with two representatives on its Board.

As is ever the case, some work is prominent and some is not.

Our Local Relief, Philanthropic and Remembrance committees have done much good work, faithfully and quietly, often no one knowing about it but the committee and those benefited.

The historian, also, is a useful but silent person, faithfully recording our deeds. You all know the fine work done by our program chairman, both in the beautiful year book we have enjoyed using, and in the programs we have appreciated from week to week.

Our publicity chairman has given correct reports of our meetings to the local and city papers, so that every one has been informed about our work. This has been no small task and I feel she deserves our hearty thanks.

We have been pleased with the work of our General Curator, which office is new this year.

Our legislative chairman has presented her work to the club several times in a very interesting and instructive manner, and also had charge of one program.

The chairman of civics has been active and the federation secretary has kept us in touch with the District work. We have enjoyed the work of the hospitality committee and the beautiful decorations have delighted our eyes. The majority of our new members have been welcomed by our calling committee and we have ever found members of the courtesy committee at the door.

Our parliamentarian has been ever able and willing to answer any questions asked her, and I hope more of our members will take up the study of parliamentary usage.

Our custodian has carefully guarded the properties entrusted to her care, so you will readily see how many persons have been associated with the president and board of directors, in striving to make the club machinery run smoothly. Our secretaries have been most faithful in the performance of their important duties and the club is fortunate to have them serve again next year.

At most of our meetings we have displayed the flag, and our unison singing has been generally of patriotic songs.

Permit me to again thank you all and wish for our club continued and greater success and prosperity in the years to come.

PLEASE BRING BACK MY SHOES

Two ladies bought the same style shoe at Horton's Shoe Store about two months ago. One pair was size 7C, the other 6C, a two-tone Grey Button Boot, price $7.00, and on the 5th of this month they both happened to come in to get the buttons wired on. Well, the lady that owned the size 6C called first and was given by mistake the 7B, and being a pretty warm day she wore them and is still wearing them and doesn't know the difference and perhaps is happy. But the other lady needed all the room she had in her number 7s so cannot get on the size 6C at all, and wishes very much that her shoes be returned to Horton's Shoe Store as soon as possible.

Mrs. Ruby J. Smart will be the hostess to the W. C. T. U. and their friends Friday, June 29, from 2:30 to 5 p. m. A very interesting and entertaining program has been arranged. Miss Olive Taylor of 134 Belmont street will give her oration, "The Great Awakening." This oration was one of the four orations given at the High School oratorical contest in April and was received with much applause. Miss Taylor is a pleasing speaker and her subject deals with the question that is the foremost one in our nation to-day, "National Prohibition." Several of the young ladies of the Y. P. B. will render musical selections, vocal, piano, and violin. The W. C. T. U. war service and the National and State Councils of Defense will be the subject presented by Mrs. Smart. Everybody is welcome. Each member should feel it her duty to be present. One block beyond the Broadway car line.

AMERICAN FLAG VS. GERMAN FLAG

(A contributor sends to The Christian Science Monitor this article comparing flag sentiment in Germany and the United States. The article is printed exactly as received.)

At this time, when "Old Glory" is seen in every direction, the question often presents itself to me, "Does the German flag mean to the German the same as our Stars and Stripes mean to the American?"

Born and brought up in Germany, having even served in the German army, I may venture to say that I can speak on the subject with authority. Of course the German has his flag, yet flags would perhaps better express it, because, aside from the German colors "black, white and red," each state has its colors, which are shown just as much and probably even more than those of the Fatherland. For instance, whenever we had occasion to fly flags in our town, there were fully as many "green and white" ones—the Saxon colors—as there were of "black, white and red." Yet it must not be understood that these are hoisted together; no, if a man had a Saxon flag, that was all he had, while his neighbor had just the German one.

But the greatest difference between here and Germany is as to what the flag stands for. Ask an American, and he will unhesitatingly tell you that the Stars and Stripes stand for freedom, liberty and democracy. Ask a German, and he will have no answer, at least none beyond that "black, white and red" stands for German, "green and white" for Saxon, "black and white" for Prussian, etc. We were never told when going to school of any ideals either the German or Saxon flag represented, and while, when joining the army, we had to swear by a flag, it was not the German flag, but the regimental standard in Saxon colors, which simply meant to be loyal to the Emperor, and as I now look at it, swear away what little thought of freedom there may have been, and absolute blind obedience to the greatest autocrat the world has ever known.

Was the flag over there such an inspiring, sacred emblem as here? Never. True, we had regimental standards, that is, each battalion had its flag, but it is very little anyone could tell about them if asked to give a description. All I know is, that those of my regiment were not German colors but Saxon, viz., green and white, as stated above. And why this seeming ignorance? Because I know of but two occasions during my entire military service, when the flags were unfurled, and that was when swearing in the recruits and during the revue on the King's birthday. Although at other occasions, such as drills in battalions or larger units, during maneuvers, etc., the flags were present, they were never unfurled, but always carefully rolled and wrapped in an oilcloth cover. Yet after all, the regimental colors were our highest conception of a flag, because, whether unfurled or wrapped, we had always to give them the same salute as to His Majesty himself, in other words, the flag represented a personality instead of being an emblem for noble ideals.

As a general thing, flags meant in Germany but so much bunting. They were hoisted on the King's birthday with no more enthusiasm and perhaps not even as extensively, as when the Crossbow Shooting Society or any other society had their annual festivities in midsummer. Of course, under those circumstances it mattered not whether the flag was "black, white, red" or "green and white," or something else, as long as it made a gay picture. I remember, some one in our town had a Belgian flag; how and why he got it, I don't know, but we always rather admired it because it was a little different, which only again confirms the lack of any thought of an ideal underlying the German flag. There is only one flag I never saw in Saxony and that is the Prussian flag, probably because the Saxons didn't have much love for the Prussians.

On another occasion His Majesty the King visited town. Quite naturally there were flags galore, but by no means all green and white, the Saxon colors, for anything would do as long as it was a flag. The school children were all lined up along the streets, but to think that each one was waving a flag would be a mistake. I don't believe such a thing occurred to the reception committee. The older children wore green and white sashes, and the younger ones were waving sticks with wreaths tied thereto. I never could see in what particular the latter expressed patriotism, and the youngsters did not seem to like them, either. Could you think of a parade here without at least one American flag? Never. Yet in Germany they don't even have the national colors on such occasions and sometimes no flag at all. How proudly every one carries the American flag whenever we have a parade, and it invariably arouses profound enthusiasm. It is not the pretty colors—a beautiful flag though it is—that stirs us up, but the ideals which that greatest of all flags represents, and even the children here manifest an enthusiasm for their flag such as have never seen with the Germans.

I have never heard just what thought the designer of our first flag had in mind, and why he adopted the stars and stripes for our national emblem. But in thinking it over further, I couldn't help but feel how very appropriate the combination is. In the first place, we have the blue field, blue expressing honesty and loyalty, in short, everything that is noble. The star has ever been the symbol of guidance. It guided the wise men to the cradle of Jesus, and our nation surely has taken the lead in democracy and in guiding those who wish to follow its flag to freedom and liberty. And last but not least what do the stripes represent? The prophet Isaiah says when speaking of Jesus, "with his stripes we are healed," and have we not as a nation always been ready to take our share of the stripes, first when fighting for our independence, then when abolishing slavery, and now to free the world from autocracy.

In this connection it may not be amiss to also say a word about the eagle, as shown on flag and coin in this country, as compared with that adopted in Germany. The United States has always clung to the true eagle, which is shown holding in the right talon an olive branch and in the left a bundle of 13 arrows, signifying alertness, not only first of all to offer and maintain peace, but also —should the situation so demand— to send forth its darts to fight for the right.

The Germans, however, have conventionalized the eagle and it appears now as what might be called a black fantastic counterfeit, holding in its red claws the scepter and imperial globe, both signs of great personal authority and power, and above it is usually shown the imperial crown, the symbol of sovereignty.

I am certainly glad that the Stars and Stripes are flying over my home to-day.

NEWSPAPER WAIFS

"You own a motor car, of course?" "No," replied J. Fuller Gloom. "I am one of those quaint and curious creatures who feel that they can afford to walk."—Judge.

First Surgeon—"What did you operate on patient No. 2 for?" Second Surgeon—"Five hundred dollars." First Surgeon—"You don't understand. I mean what did the patient have?" "Five hundred dollars."

Mr. Millyuns—"I will give you my daughter, sir, if you will promise to maintain her afterwards." Suitor—"Heavens! You talk as though you were giving away a free public library."—Boston Transcript.

"That summer boarder of ours spends a good deal of time in the dairy. Seems to take a great interest in the separator." "Well, he's in that line himself." "Huh?" "He's a divorce lawyer."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Has prohibition made a difference in Crimson Gulch?" "Some," admitted Broncho Bob. "The boys now go and put their money in the bank their own selves instead of lettin' the barkeep do it for them."—Washington Star.

NEW NATIONAL DISHES

Gerald Sherman, superintendent of the mining department of Phelps, Dodge & Co., told this one: At a miners' union meeting held at Bisbee at the time there was an attempt being made to unionize the camp, the question arose as to whether Mexicans admitted to the union should be allowed to work underground. One speaker opposed any such thought on the grounds of difference in economic equality of the whites and Mexicans. Waving warm to his subject he shouted: "How do they live? You all know. What do they wear? You all know. What do they eat?"—(Voice from back of hall): "Chile Killarney and Torpedoes."—Engineering and Mining Journal.

HEALING FADS

STOCKTON, June 26.—The rabbit's foot, worn about the neck as a charm for luck, or the raw potato carried in the pocket to cure rheumatism, are no more inert and worthless and not nearly as harmful as many of the extreme ideas of healing, the injurious effects of which many people do not seem to realize, according to Dr. W. J. Johnson, representing the St. Helena Sanitarium, who spoke at the Seventh-day Adventist camp-ground at Oak Park here yesterday afternoon. The excessive use of raw food, long-continued fasting, the manipulation of the bones for all ailments, massage for every pain, and a pill for every ill were among the extremes in the treatment of disease mentioned by the physician.

Stomach bitters and patent medicines he pronounced particularly dangerous, saying that some of them have been found in former years to contain as large a percentage of alcohol as dry whiskey, and that so-called stomach bitters to-day contian as much alcohol as red and white wines.

"Why is it," asked the physician, "that we cannot exercise as good judgment in dealing with our bodies as in conducting our business or ranches? Oftentimes you take much better care of your chickens and stock than you do of your own bodies.

"I don't believe God ever intended that we should live on raw food entirely, although some raw fruits and raw vegetables may be good for us. I don't see any more virtue in getting one's feet wet in the early morning dew than in getting them wet in a tub.

"Some people think that no matter what the ailment, it can be cured by scientifically applied massage. But there are some conditions which need more than that. Also some ailments need more than having your spine stretched until it cracks.

"A fast for a day or two, or for three days, may be good for the individual whose stomach is out of order, but the extreme fast of several weeks is injurious to the body. Some people have fasted until they have done themselves injury which cannot be made right. Sometimes a short fast is of great benefit, but we should guard against extremes.

"Some take a dose of pills or medicine for every trouble. These often do more harm than good. We cannot expect to get well and keep well without obedience to the laws of God and nature. We cannot expect to eat all kinds of food at unseemly hours and keep our health.

"The scientific use of natural remedies will work wonders. Water, fresh air and sunshine are of great value in the treatment of disease. A cheerful frame of mind is also of great benefit, for the mind exercises a powerful and potent influence over the body. The man or woman who trusts in God may have peace, and better health than he who worries. God wants you to have confidence in His power and promises."

With a tremendous sale of books, pamphlets and periodicals, amounting to more than two million dollars last year, and the prospect that more than three million dollars worth will be sold this year, Seventh-day Adventist publications are being studied by an interested public as never before in the history of the denomination, according to Mr. F. E. Painter, field missionary of the Pacific Union Conference, who spoke in the big canvas pavilion at the annual camp-meeting yesterday morning.

Every Seventh-day Adventist publishing house in America is crowded far beyond capacity, he said. The Pacific Press Publishing Association, at Mountain View, Cal., the leading denominational printing plant on the Pacific Coast, is just turning out half a million books. Photo engraving department, linotype machines, presses, folders and bindery are working night and day to keep abreast of orders, he said. Similar conditions prevail at the Review and Herald Publishing Association, in Washington, D. C., another large publishing plant of the Adventists, and at the Southern Publishing Association, in Nashville, Tenn., Mr. Painter added.

At the Mountain View plant the entire force has been nearly doubled, and the manager, assistant manager, and office force have been obliged to go into the shipping room and help pack books, in order to relieve the congestion. Pastor C. E. Knight, a Seventh-day Adventist missionary on furlough from South America, visited the publishing house a few days ago, and was urged to assist at the plant. He donned overalls, rolled up his sleeves, went into the press room, and because of his early experience as a printer, is rendering valuable help. So heavy have been the orders that the Pacific Press Publishing Association is shipping its books several carloads at a time, and ordering its paper the same way, Mr. Painter said.

Mr. E. H. Abbott, of Lodi, field missionary of the Northern California Conference, said 6,864 Adventist books were sold last year in this local field alone, and that thousands of people are interested in their doctrine. He told how William Jennings Bryan purchased Seventh-day Adventist books in Turkey and again in Bolivia, as well as in America, and remarked, "Where on earth are not you people, anyway?" Mr. Abbott said this denomination is now publishing in 91 languages, and expects eventually to print its literature in every language and dialect on the face of the globe. Such curious names as Tagalog, Ilocano, Gujarati, Czehc, Cebuan, Battak, Kisukuma, Kijita, Rarotongan, Ruthenian, Sechuanna and Zulu, as well as all the European languages, are among the strange tongues in which Adventist books may be bought.

TEST OF CIVILIZATION

The remarkable people of this world are useful in their way; but the common people, after all, represent the nation, the age, and the civilization. Go into any town or city; do not ask who lives in that splendid house; do not say, this is a fine town, there are streets of houses with gardens and yards, and everything that is beautiful the whole way through. Go into the lanes, go into the back streets, go where the mechanic lives. See what is the condition of the streets there. See what they do with the poor, with the helpless and the mean. If the top of society bends perpetually over the bottom with tenderness, if the rich and strong are the best friends of the poor and needy, that is a civilized and a Christian community; but if the rich and the wise are the cream and the great bulk of the population skimmed milk, that is not a prosperous community.—Henry Ward Beecher.

We are practical beings, each of us with limited functions and duties to perform. Each is bound to feel intensely the importance of his own duties and the significance of the situations that call these forth. But this feeling is in each of us a vital secret, for sympathy with which we vainly look to others. The others are too much absorbed in their own vital secrets to take an interest in ours. Hence the stupidity and injustice of our opinions, as far as they deal with the significance of alien lives. Hence the falsity of our judgments, so far as they presume to decide in an absolute way on the value of other persons' conditions or ideals.—Wm. James.
